Tech firms welcome Budget, want focus on digitisation to continue

The government plans to deploy digital solutions in seven priority areas: from infrastructure and last-mile delivery in the financial sector. The Budget proposed establishing three centres of excellence (CoE) to build AI solutions for agriculture, health, and sustainable cities. It said the government will establish 100 labs to develop applications using 5G services, as they offer new opportunities, business models, and employment. "To achieve the vision of 'Make AI work for India', the COEs will need to shift focus from experimental to applied technology, take advantage of innovation in ancillary technologies around Automation and low code platforms, drive focus on upskilling and responsible AI."

Nirmala Sitharaman's balancing act in Union Budget 2023: Won't tax, will spend

The big Budget idea came in the form of raising the threshold at which income tax kicks in to Rs 7 lakh a year from Rs 5 lakh a year, plus a solid nudge prodding individuals to shift to a new tax regime by restructuring the tax slabs. This does key things: pushing people to a clutter-free zero exemption tax regime, to freeing up money in the hands of those earning just under Rs 60,000 a month for spending and also directing money from tax-focused saving instruments to discretionary spending or investment in the markets.

Budget sets stage for India's bright future

The Union Budget 2023-2024 is a fine convergence of economic growth, inclusive development, sustainable development goals, technological prowess, and fiscal prudence. Finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman has done well to walk the tightrope between short-term needs and long-term goals. This is a well-balanced Budget that sticks to the fundamentals of medium-term fiscal prudence while also providing the necessary boost to the economy in the current year. India will continue to shine as a 'bright star' and retain its position as the fastest-growing large economy in 2023.
